Newspaper Week Applauds Weekly As "Backbone"

Washington, D.C. — Newspapers are taken for granted by most people most of the time but once each year the press focuses attention upon itself by sponsoring National Newspaper Week, which is being observed October 11 —17.

Newspaper publishing is a unique business. Article I of the Bill of Rights of the Constitution declares: "Congress shall make no law . . . abridging the freedom of speech or of the press." No other business has such a guarantee, nor such a responsibility.

In 1789, it was a revolutionary idea that the press should be guaranteed its freedom. That this nation has endured and prospered is due in part to the foresight of the founding fathers in insisting on making freedom of the press a fundamental precept of our form of government.

The concept that publishing a newspaper is a public trust has been developing over the years. Freedom of the press notes a responsibility to present both sides of a question, to tell it as fully and fairly as possible, and to shun one-sidedness.

At the same time the press must pay the price for its freedom. In these days when a rash of libel suits has become a publisher's normal cross, Publishing is a highly competitive business and publishers must appeal to a broad audience if they are to survive. But they must not lose their integrity.

Readers pay only a fraction of the cost of their newspaper. Advertising pays what makes up the difference. Without advertising a publication cannot be a significant force in the community, and in many communities it is known as the lifeblood of the economy.

Besides dominating the field, the backbone of industry is the backbone of weekly newspapers. There are more weekly newspapers than all other publications combined. They are closest to their readers and in many communities known most of them personally.

OBITUARIES

U. L. Hudson, 76 Father Of Local Minister, Dies

Ulus L. Hudson, 76, died bhout noon Wednesday at his home in the Tuggle community of Prince Edward County.

He was born Nov. 27, 1887 in Burke County, N. C., a son of the late Alexander Hudson and Mrs. Mary Emiline Brittain Hudson. He was a member of Glenn Memorial Baptist Church, Prospect. A retired farmer, he had been in declining health for a number of years.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Daisy Hilderbran Hudson; four sons, the Rev. Virgil L. Hudson, of Evergreen, Herman E. Hudson, of Staunton, J. Donald Hudson, Bethesda, Md., and Ulus Grant Hudson, Jr., of Highland Springs; two daughters, Mrs. Evelyn H. Huffman, of Hickory, N C., and Mrs. Clara Mae Howard, of Richmond; two brothers, G. J. Hudson, of Farmville, and Theodore Hudson, of Hickory, N. C.; four sisters, Mrs. Sally Johnson, of Wisconin, Mrs. Mary H. Propst, of Hickory, N.C., Mrs. Rose H. Carvau, of Florida, and Mrs. Frances Swann, of Washington, D. C.; 14 grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Funeral arrangements are incomplete.

George W. Coleman

CREWE, Oct. 7 — George W. Coleman, 79, a native of Appomattox county, died Wednesday, Oct. 7. He was a retired employe of the Norfolk & Western Railway. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Lena Hubbard Coleman; two daughters, Mrs. A. A. Porter, of Roanoke, and Mrs. K. A. Wilgus, of Richmond; a sister, Mrs. C. T. Overstreet, of Richmond; a brother, J. L. Coleman, of Crewe and two grandchildren. A funeral service was held at 3 p.m. Thursday at C. L. Jennings & Son Funeral Home, with burial in Crewe Cemetery.

Among those attending the service were Mrs. Cliff Plunkett and Paul Plunkett, of Appomattox.

Mrs. E. D. McClure

GLASGOW— Mrs. Ellen Wilson McClure, 51, wife of Edward Douglas McClure, of Glasgow, died at 3:50 p.m. Friday in Rockwall Jackson Hospital.

Born in Radford, she was the daughter of James Blair Wilson and Stella Abbitt Wilson. She was a public school teacher, and a member of Glasgow Presbyterian Church and Glasgow Garden Club.

She is survived by her husband.

Funeral services were conducted at 2 p.m. Sunday at Glasgow Presbyterian Church with burial in Glasgow Cemetery.

He was a member of the chapter forestry and dairy teams for three years. In 1961 he was declared the state winner in the Seaboard Forestry Award. This award was in recognition of his outstanding work in the area of forestry. Also his chapter recognized him for his achievements in wildlife and soil and water conservation through the FFA Foundation Award program.

After completing high school Dillard entered the Appomattox Young Farmer Association where he continues his study of agriculture. In 1963, he was elected treasurer of that organization. At present, he is operating the home farm in a partnership arrangement with his mother. He operates a general farm and sells milk as his main cash enterprise. Also he has under management more than 40 acres of farm woodland.

Darkleaf

What a name. He was born Jan. 31, 1892, same date this newspaper was established . . . except he was born in New York City, and everyone knew him by his stage name: Eddie Cantor. He was an orphan when only a year old and rose to stardom by sheer ability and nerve. One day he was chatting with the late FDR at the White House. FDR had been a victim of Infantile Paralysis and suggested that Cantor head up a great fun-raising drive to raise large sums to fight Polio. Cantor suggested that instead of asking for big donations from a few, that every one in America be asked to send in DIMES. . . "A March of Dimes . . . and have it on your Birthday." And so the annual March of Dimes was set up. Eddie Cantor passed away last week end, after a lingering illness. But the contribution to the world of entertainment and worthy causes by the little fellow with the Banjo Eyes will remain with us. He left us such songs as "If You Knew Susie," "Ida", "Making Whoopee and Ma, He's Making Eyes At Me" . . . but I recall most of all that his signoff theme song on radio was: Oh How I Love To Spend This Hour With You. Ah yes, we loved that Hour with You, Eddie and Down Memory Lane We'll Be Seeing You! They were great ones, all right: Al Jolson, Eddie Cantor, W. C. Fields, Will Rogers, Florenz Ziegfeld, memories now as the streams of time down their channels fret.

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary

Miss Rosa Mae Wooldridge, owner of Appomattox Beauty Shop, says goodbye to Mrs. Floyd Fleshman, Jr., above, and makes ready for another "hair do." Miss Wooldridge this year marks her twenty-fifth as beautician and hairdresser. She first gave permanents with an old style spiral machine, soon followed by a croquinole machine. She says she is happy that subsequent hair curling improvements, machineless cold waves, and present day chemical permanent waving makes for softer curls and a wide range of treatments for all kinds of hair. Miss Wooldridge first learned the art of beautifying hair in private shops. She has attended dozens of demonstrations and seminars by well know styling artists, Miss Wooldridge's staff, also shown above, includes Mrs. Elizabeth Robinson, Mrs. Iris Woody, and Mrs. Vivian Caldwell. These op.rators this fall attended the State Hairdressers Convention in Richmond. Miss Wooldridge, having trained many beauticians now successfully employed in other shops, plans to continue the training of others through the Apprentice Training Program, administered through the State Hairdressers Association.

Local Youth Wins Farmer Degree

Dillard L. Franklin, son of Mrs. Mattie Franklin and the late R. S. Franklin, Route 2, Appomattox, Virginia, has been awarded the coveted American Farmer Degree at the 37th National FFA Convention at Kansas City, Missouri. Only one member in a thousand receives this degree, which is awarded to those who have made outstanding achievements in the FFA and vocational Agriculture. Each recipient must have in operation a farming program that has led or will lead to establishment in the farming business.

Dillard Franklin is a graduate of Appomattox High School where he studied vocational agriculture for four years under H. B. Pack, R. N. Ashworth, and Lewis Motley, instructors of vocational agriculture. While in high school Dillard was extremely active in the activities of his chapter and served as chairman of several committees.
